Coollest Gadgets of 2011

Hi Valued Customer,

High end gadget and gizmos were on display at the 2011 Consumer Electronic Show in Las Vegas and the electronics did not disappoint! We wanted to share with you our favorite electronic devices of 2011.

The winner of the Home Theater category – The Samsung BD-D7000 is a 3D capable slim Blue-Ray player that can be mounted on to any wall with the help of its sleek and thin design. As 3D televisions become more popular so will the 3D capable Samsung BDD-7000 Blue Ray player. The Samsung also plays 2D movies as well.

Next on the list is the winner for 2011 Proto-types which is a new category for the CES Show - Toshiba 3D Eyeglass Free laptop. This Proto-type has software built in to track your eye movement to make sure you are always viewing a 3D image. This Proto-type just may be the next generation in laptops. The trend is also moving in the way of televisions and game system technology. 3D glasses may be a here today but gone tomorrow.

Winner of the Digital Imaging category is the Sony Handycam HDR Series with a built in projector. The projector can project videos and images up to 60 inches and 18 feet away. It also has a stereo and built in speakers. This cool gadget also has a built in USB port along with a large hard drive. The Wide Angle lense ;12 x optical and 17 x extended zoom compliments the 7.1 mega pixel still image capture very well. The cost for this Sony Handycam is $1,000.

Our last pick of 2011 winners is in the "Design" category – Casio's Exilim TryX Digital Camera Point & Shoot, Twist Swivel, Flip, Hang, Project. This fun and easy to uses camera does so many things. The frame is not connected to the main body only on the lens allowing for a diverse array of shooting angles and positions. You can actually use the frame/body of the outer camera to leverage, or to suspend the camera, or use it as an impromptu tripod. The TRYX can also shoot video. The ease of this camera comes as a left- or right-handed person can maneuver naturally. Self portraits are simple with the large 3" LCD screen because the body can be rotated independent of the lens.

We give all the fun gadgets and gizmos an A+ at this year's 2011 Consumer Electronic Show.

Automated Business Products has exciting new electronic applications for every day copier and printer users. The applications are actually at the customer finger tips and so many users aren't ware of the functions of what and how to simplify their document work flow. For example our Hypas for the Kyocera line enables customers to more fully optimized document imaging devices, resulting in a lower cost of operation and more immediate return on investment.

The picture above displays Paper Trail, Secure Print, My Forms, and 2My Inbox . With each Hypas application the customer will be able to obtain document information that can immediately lower their bottom line.

Paper Trail records each person's activity as they scan, print and or make a copy. How you ask? Each person gets a Key Fob or a Proximity card that they swipe at the machine and when they pick up prints, make copies and or scan the job is recorded and the department head can view how much each person is printing which can help reduce cost when unnecessary printing/copying is found. Other uses for this app:

- Tracked usage can be used for billing purposes
- Detailed usage reports

Secure Printing – (The only person that can view the print is the person who printed the material)

- Jobs stored encrypted in a print queue
- Release jobs from any supported MFP
- Jobs not released can be automatically deleted
- Authorization
- MFP functions can be allowed or restricted by domain group (lock out color – this will save customers money disabling unwanted color costs)

My Forms - Print PRESCRIBE forms at the MFP panel

- Uses PRESCRIBE macro generator
- Form fields automatically filled-in
- Logged-in user's information from LDAP

- Data entered at the panel
- Data can be retrieved from a database
